

Creative Writing – December Schedule

Date	Class Activities
Monday, Dec 1	Work on lesson
Tuesday, Dec 2	Work on lesson
Wednesday, Dec 3	Practice lessons in class
Thursday, Dec 4	Practice lessons in class Final conferences begin
Friday, Dec 5	Teaching lessons (P3/P5) Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire (in class)
Monday, Dec 8	Email with final spell due by end of class Writing conferences
Tuesday, Dec 9	Work day on Writer's Toolbox and Revisions Writing conferences
Wednesday, Dec 10	Work day on Writer's Toolbox and Revisions Course evaluation Writing conferences
Thursday, Dec 11	Writing conferences in morning No class: Model Senate in afternoon/evening Final toolbox due and revisions due

Remaining point distribution:

- Summative: Spell (40 points), Teaching (60 points), Course Evaluation (10 points)
- Formative: Writing Conference (10 points), outstanding assignments, extra credit revision (if desired)
- Community Learning: outstanding workshop prep sheets

Creative Writing – Extra Credit Revision

Goal: For you to creatively apply feedback from the class to improve a piece of work that you care about.

What: As with all revisions, you must show that you are either working to address aspects of your work you've received feedback on or are experimenting with new tactics to achieve your desired results. You can choose to revise your "writing to truth" moment, your story, or your poems.

You must turn in a reflection with your revision explaining the following:

- Why you decided to do another revision?
- What you are trying to improve?
- Strategies you used to try to improve the piece?
- How successful you think your revision is?
- Questions you still have about the work?

This reflection must be at least one-page double-spaced.

Deadline: Thursday, December 11th by midnight

Grading: The grade for the revision will replace the first revision grade (worth 40 points) for whatever assignment you are revising. A revision that does not seriously address substantive issues with the piece will receive a lower grade than the original.