Questions:

Put a star next to the two criteria that are the most important to focus on when giving them feedback.

Now, take turns. One person shares their self-assessment, including their challenge. The others respond verbally using their critique form, which they give to author after the discussion. The author takes notes on the back of their form. Hand these forms to me after you're done. I will copy them and give them back to you.

You will be given 10 community learning points if you provide quality feedback to both of your peers.
